

NEW SHIP CRISIS CALLS WILSON TO WASHINGTON; IS PARALLEL TO ARABIC

MAKING OF PERSIA COMPLI- TATES RELATIONS BETWEEN UNITED STATES AND AUSTRIA.

U. S. CONSUL PERISHES

Robert N. McNeely Believed to Be Only American Lost—More Than 200 Drowned—Zwidenick Gives Assurance to Lansing.

Hot Springs, Va., Jan. 3.—President Wilson will return to Washington tonight to take charge of the new crisis in foreign relations caused by the destruction of the British liner Persia.

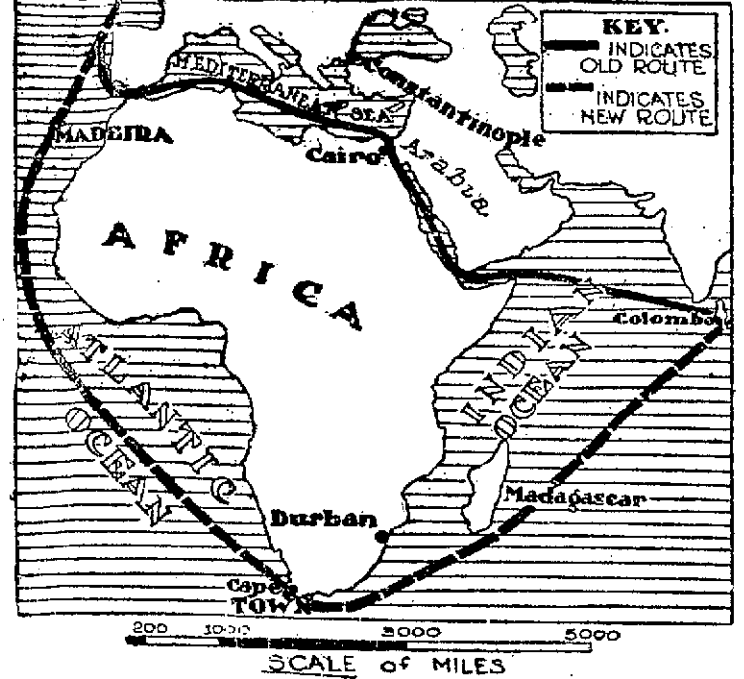

The situation as it exists today, was described in official quarters as paralleling the crisis which was caused by the sinking of the Arabic, close to Germany's assurance that the responses of representations with the United States on the destruction of the Lusitania.

While American officials are keeping their minds open until they have all the facts in the Persia case officially, and know whether Americans were endangered in the sinking of the Persia, the gravity of the situation is not being underestimated.

One fact developed today in the Persia case. The American consul at Alexandria reported that it carried one 47 inch gun but did not state where the gun was mounted.

Officially consider that the Austrian submarine campaign in the Mediterranean has brought on just such a crisis as did the German submarine campaign in the North Atlantic.

EZRA GOODRICH DIES ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

SON OF FOUNDER OF MILTON COLLEGE DIES AT HIS HOME IN MILTON TOWNSHIP.

WAS A TRUE PIONEER

Came to Rock County With Parents in 1839 When Janesville Boasted of One Log Cabin.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Milton, Jan. 3.—Ezra Goodrich, one of the last of Rock county's pioneers and son of the founder of Milton College, passed away at his home here at seven-thirty in the evening of New Year's day. He was nearly ninety years of age, since he was born on February 24, 1826, at Alfred, Allegheny county, New York.

When thirteen years of age he emigrated with his parents to the territory of Wisconsin and settled on a wild and beautiful prairie of the Rock River valley, subsequently called Prairie du Lac. The army trails and the fires of General Atkinson and Black Hawk then were freshly marked, and the Indians in their native glory still roamed their favorite hunting grounds. Janesville and Port Atkinson then had but one log cabin, the residence of the first settler, Dwight Foster. To this unsettled country the Goodrich family came in a wagon drawn by an ox team.

Mr. Goodrich was the first school kept in the town of Milton. In 1844 his father built an academy in Milton which he maintained for ten years and in which Ezra was a student for a part of the time. He attended the preparatory department of Beloit College the winter of 1847-8 and Alfred academy, 1848-9. In the fall of 1849 Mr. Goodrich engaged in the mercantile business at Milton with William H. Goodrich and John S. Carr, running a general store.

In 1854 he raised the original stock for Milton academy, one of the pioneer educational institutions of the west, and subscribed heavily to the fund. In 1868, upon finding the institution then advanced to the status of a college, in which the school community, keeping secret his intention of calling upon his friends and neighbors for subscriptions for the benefit of the college, there were three hundred guests at the event, all of whom were served at supper at tables seating 150 at one time. The supper was followed by music and singing, after which Mr. Goodrich announced the completion of the Milton school and his purpose to raise a subscription among the guests. Other speakers were called upon and Mr. Goodrich opened his list with a gift and a request amounting in all to $2,000. The result was that $8,000 were raised on the spot and within a week it had been increased to $13,000, of which $2,000 was for a permanent endowment fund.

Leader in Public Affairs.
In all affairs of Milton Mr. Goodrich was prominent as a leader and an adviser. In 1869 he was instrumental in the purchase of the present site on the public square for the new school building. He secured a reorganization of the Milton cemetery association and himself inaugurated the work of grading of the lots and of sodding. There were planted and as a result the cemetery is one of the most beautiful burial places in southern Wisconsin.

Mr. Goodrich's father was one of the first directors of the Milwaukee road and aided in the promotion of the line through Milton. He rode on the first train over the line, which was composed of a few flat cars drawn by a wood burner engine called the "Janesville." At each station a cannon, mounted on one of the flat cars, was fired.

and Anna have also been dead for some years. Twenty-two years ago Mr. Goodrich married the late Morgan Little of Milton Junction. Besides his wife, son Joseph and daughter, Mrs. George W. Post, he is survived by seven grandchildren and a large circle of relatives. The funeral will be held at the S. D. B. church at Milton on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

Rock county and Milton, especially, suffer a great loss in the passing of Mr. Goodrich. He was an honest, public spirited citizen, conscientious and self-sacrificing, a natural leader among his fellow men. He was highly respected and revered by friends and neighbors who will remember him as a high type of noble manhood.

LAKOTAS LAY CLAIM TO WESTERN HONORS

IN FIVE CONTESTS IN MINNESOTA LOSE ONLY TO RED WING TEAM.

LOSE ONLY ONE GAME

Ready to Meet All Comers in Defending Championship Claim—Believe Here on Saturday.

Somehow crippled the Lakotas Cardinals returned Sunday from their tour of the north with a most excellent record of winning four out of five games, losing only the crack Red Wing aggregation in their second game. The results of the trip is the biggest boost to the Lakotas and to the city, which has been experienced in several years. For the Lakotas now have a just right to claim the western title. And what's more, they stand ready to defend it against all comers.

The Red Wing team plays under the name of Company L and is composed of starting and reserve players of the hundred pounds. They are all powerful, rough and tenacious performers, with years of basketball experience. In the first game the Lakotas by a wonderful spin upon the ball, scored a score of 26 to 27. In the last four seconds of play Red Wing was leading 24 to 25 and were "stalling" with the ball, refusing to pass it under their own goal waiting for time. Detroit slipped through the guard, pounced upon the giant Hawkins, knocking the ball from his hand. Korst dribbled the length of the floor and scored just before the whistle was blown.

In the second game, played before the largest crowd that ever attended a game at Red Wing, the Cardinals met a formidable foe. The Red Wing team, after their defeat, were in the game to win, and press reports show that they were aided in a very liberal amount by the referee. Protesting did not avail. The Lakotas scored their first defeat 40 to 20. Much dissatisfaction was expressed by the Lakotas over the officiating, but all the players declare that when the Red Wing team won the victory for time, Detroit team will take some of their own medicine in the way of a double defeat.

On Friday night the Lakotas defeated Lake City 53 to 26 in a walk away game. A reporter for the Red Wing paper has the following to say regarding the Lakotas: "Janesville has an excellent team composed of a clean set of young men who know the game and are well equipped with the necessary tools. They have shown better team work than has been seen here this season. On the floor last night there was little doubt that the visitors would capture the victory. PETEY DINK—PETEY'S NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION SERVES ONE GOOD PURPOSE, ANYWAY.

SPORTS

IMPORTANT MEETS IN SPORTSDOM FOR THE COMING YEAR

International and Intercollegiate Meets Are Being Planned Despite the War.

New York, Jan. 3.—While the European war has killed all chances of international sports competition on the scale of the Olympic games and the American cup regatta, the coming year will not be without its international and intercollegiate contests. In fact, indications point to a wider range of sport meetings during 1916 than ever before in the history of amateur competition in this country.

National championship contests are expected to draw entrants from all parts of the continent and with the interest of all sections bound up in the play of their respective contestants, the dearth of international sports, planned for 1916, will be partially forgotten. The Pacific Coast will send a powerful and well-balanced tennis team to eastern courts for several months of tournament play. Stanford university will enter a team in the intercollegiate track and field championships, the winning crew in the Far Coast intercollegiate regatta will row at Poughkeepsie.

An eastern polo team will play in the middle and far west while one or more from these sections will compete in the national championships later in the summer. With the coming of autumn intercollegiate football games will be more frequent than ever, the south, east, middle and far west eleven meeting in numerous gridiron contests.

The outlook for international meets is not so promising although there will be some events along these lines. The baseball team of Waseda university of Japan will tour this country, playing the leading professional clubs. The Australian boxers are preparing to invade the states; Christian Mathewson, the world's champion skater, is expected to compete against the leading professional speed skaters of America during the winter. An All-Hawaiian polo team will play in the east next spring; several South American rifle teams are planning to shoot in the national tournaments, and the invasion of the United States by a large track and field team from at least one foreign nation is a possibility.

MORRIS MILLER

One of the complaints against the O'Neill, retiring president of the Western league, was that his umpires were a bad lot. O'Neill has taken the club owners at their word and has notified all the 1915 umpires of their dismissal. Naturally it will be a long time before President Zehner can replace any of them.

The thirty-four bicycle riders who participated in the recent six-day event at Madison Square garden, New York, shared in over $23,000 prize money. A big six-day event will be held in Chicago in February and many of the same contestants will take part.

An All-American track and field team for the season of 1916 shows that the twenty positions on the team are divided among the athletes named in the following sectional proportions: East, eleven places; middle west, four places; Pacific coast, five places.

Leach Cross and Benny Leonard, New York lightweight, do not want any of Johnny Kilbane's name. Both have passed up offers to box the featherweight champion in his fight this winter. Naturally it will be a long time before they can concede them considerable weight.

Probably no league in the country has witnessed such a general change in baseball managers as the Southern at the end of this season. At least four of the clubs will boast new leaders next year. Nashville has Roy Ellum in place of Bill Schwartz. Memphis has replaced the late manager with Billy Smith to take on Charles Frank, formerly of New Orleans, and Harry McCormick has abandoned the field at Chattanooga.

Adrian C. Anson is going to put on a new vaudeville act, in which his two daughters will help him out. It is to be distinctly different from the former line of monologue, for it will get away from baseball exclusively and there will be some singing and dancing in it—by the daughters, to be sure.

Next year it will be discovered whether Benny Kauff was the Ty Cobb of the Federal league, or whether Ty Cobb was the Benny Kauff of the American league.

Eddie Mahan, the star athlete of Harvard University, has turned down all offers to go into professional ball. He says he means to buckle down to real work and make something of himself when the graduation comes. How when gentle spring comes he may change his mind.

Organized baseball should now protect itself against further invasions by those who believe that fortunes can be made out of the game. A serious mistake was made a couple of years ago when one section of Chicago was left unprotected. The American Association should have been allowed to put a club in the North Side of the Windy City, where the Federal league located. This gave the outfielders a possible. Now if the Cubs go to the North Side it might be a good idea to allow the American Association to play on the West Side.

Hank O'Day is to umpire in the National league next year. It is reported from Chicago that President Tenet will appoint the veteran to his staff this winter. Hank is not apt to ever again have a job as a major league manager, and the remainder of his baseball career will no doubt be spent in umpiring.

Report comes from Chillicothe, where Josh Devore held forth as manager of the town team in the Ohio State league that last season. Josh will go to the training camp with the Phillies in the spring and attempt to prove to Manager Moran that he is a comeback. There were worse ball players in the National league last season, and holding regular berths, too, than Josh.

AMERICAN ATHLETES LED THE WORLD IN YEAR JUST PASSING

Yankees Still Supreme in the Athletic World—Lack of International Competition During 1915.

By Strikes.

With but few exceptions America maintained the reputation in 1915 of producing the leading figures in sport, and no other country was able to develop so many record-breakers as were seen here. The absence of foreign competition lessened the interest of American sport followers to a small degree during the year almost finished, but in spite of this fact indoor and outdoor sports and pastimes engaged more attention to probably a greater degree than ever before in the history of sport in this country.

New champions sprang up in the places of some who appeared destined to go on for at least another year, but many of those who were at the top of the list in their particular branch were still able to uphold their supremacy, and every branch of sport showed a healthy and pleasing growth.

Cornell Leads.

Athletes of Cornell university covered themselves with glory and placed the Ithaca institution in the forefront of college athletics. In rowing Cornell continued to attest to the coaching of Charles Courne, who during the year won the rights which contested over the Poughkeepsie-Highland course, which series attracted among others, a Leander Stanford University crew which finished second in the competition. Intercollegiate track and field championship Cornell again captured premier honors and the third "blue" was obtained in the football championship. The team was one of the big surprises of a season of more than the average number of upsets. The Ithaca team narrowly missed winning the intercollegiate cross-country run, Francis Outen, who made such a sensational debut into the golf world a couple of years ago, is another of the champions to be admired, the champion going to R. A. Gardner, a western amateur.

R. Norris Williams, 2d, and Maurice E. McLoughlin will be missing from the list of titleholders, both of whom were forced to bow before a younger man, but their vanquisher proved worthy of the great honor of leading the American tennis world.

Some of the champions who retained their honors were Frank I. Kramer, the bicyclist, who for the fifteenth consecutive time took the professional sprinting championship and also the world's short distance title. Willie Hoppe, the billiard billiard titleholder, Alfred De Oro, the three-cushion billiard expert; Ty Cobb, the famous batter of the Detroit American league baseball team, and Freddie Welsh, the lightweight boxer. Jay Gould was another to demonstrate that he is alone in his field, once again demonstrating his superiority over all court tennis players of the country. Walter A. Kinsella, the champion of Stephen Feron who had held the professional squash tennis title for a dozen years, and then added the professional court tennis championship to the list of winners that made the season one of unusual interest.

In the field of minor sports there was no lack of competitive enthusiasm. College basketball and swimming had a very successful season. There was a marked decrease in the association football championships, both intercollegiate and amateur. Trap shooting has received a new lease of life, and the horse show came back to the Garden after the absence of a year. Alexander Aberg came to the fore as the world's wrestling champion after defeating Waldok Zyszkow, following a tie in the international tournament.

Yale oarsmen made a clean sweep at the intercollegiate regatta at New London, leading Harvard in each of the three events contested. The annual rowing races of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen were chiefly interesting on account of the success of the Dutch crews, which captured the majority of events, including the eight-oared race. The single sculls went to Robert Dibble, a Canadian oarsman, which was one of the few important championships to leave this country.

In track athletics Americans made a brilliant showing, as many record-breaking performances will attest. Prominent among the leading figures in Amateur Athletic Union competition were Hannes Kolehmainen, James E. (Ted) Meredith, Norman Taber and George H. Goulding, the Canadian. Several new records were added to the already long list on the A. U. books.

In baseball nearly every follower of the sport recalls the nation-wide interest in the series for the American championship between the Boston Red Sox of the American league and the Philadelphia Nationals with victory finally perching on the banner of the former. A noteworthy performance in connection with the championship series for the pennants was that of Grover Cleveland Alexander, the Philadelphia pitcher, who greatly aided in winning the title in the National league.

The year saw the passing of some noted champions, but the sport that had the greatest revision of title holders was tennis. In the law game the men's singles and doubles again went to California with new title holders, the women's singles was won by a young Norwegian girl, Miss Blumsted, while in the clay court game new holders also were developed.

Charles Weeghman took an expensive and roundabout way to acquire control of the Cubs. Something like the man wanting to build a railroad in Arizona and starting by buying a sailing ship in Maine.

FRANK GROVE HOLDS ALLEY RECORD-298

Rolls a Record Game Last Saturday Evening at the Miller Allys.

Knocks Down 298 Pins.

Frank Grove opened his New Year's bowling career with one and if not the highest score ever made in Janesville for many years. In a single game he toppled over two hundred and ninety-eight pins, and but for a flaw in the last frame of his game, he would have rolled a perfect score. Other high scores which have held the record for the latter part of last year have only been around the 268 mark.

Yes! A Sensible Cigarette and you can prove it!

As a matter of fact, there are several sensible cigarettes on the market today. Fatimas aren't the only ones. You can figure for yourself what a sensible cigarette is:

First—it must please your taste. Second—it must be cool and comfortable to the throat and tongue. Third—it must leave you feeling good and snappy even after you have smoked more than usual; no heavy or "heady" feeling—no grouch at yourself for having smoked too much.

On the second and third points Fatimas ring the bell every time.

TWO TESTS FOR ANY CIGARETTE

The taste of the cigarette—according to a leading tobacco journal—is up to the smoker. But there are other qualities that you should look for in the cigarette that you are going to stick to for your steady smoke. Here are a couple of tests that may help the average smoker to choose more wisely between different kinds of cigarettes.

The first test is for coolness, which means more comfort to the throat and tongue. Light any cigarette. Draw in a cloud of smoke—a small, ordinary puff is not sufficient to make this test. Hold it in your mouth for a few seconds. Let it "float" around against your tongue and throat. Now blow out the smoke. If the cigarette contains a high grade of mild tobacco leaves, combined in just the right proportion, it will always feel COOL and smooth both to your throat and to your tongue.

On the other hand, if the proportions are not right and if the cigarette contains inferior grades of tobacco or hidden strands of rank, city leaf, you will feel a nipping sting at the tip of your tongue and a "sandpaper" tickle in your throat.

Test number two—How do you feel after smoking all day?

If the tobacco in the cigarette includes a correct proportion of mild grades—and if all of the various grades have been properly mellowed by age—and if they have been so blended as to bring out the best qualities and to neutralize any unpleasant qualities in each of the different types of tobacco, you will be able to smoke practically whenever you feel like it through the day without feeling any effect from it.

But with another cigarette in which the blend is less skillful, even though the tobacco are of the highest grade, you will find along towards the end of the day that you are likely to have that feeling of having "smoked too much."

Clip out these tests and try them on Fatima.

MANY PEOPLE ATTEND OPEN HOUSE AT "Y"

Fully Five Hundred Attend New Year's Program at the Young Men's Christian Association.

Many people attended the New Year's open house at the Young Men's Christian Association all during the day Saturday. From morning until night the lobby and the rooms of the boys' department were thronged with people. On account of the sickness of Secretary Bearmore, H. J. Center, boys' secretary, took charge of the program and a lot of credit is due him for his efforts. The different reception committees were in charge of the rooms during the day and they showed the visitors around and saw that all present had a good time.

The morning program consisted of a pocket-billiard tourney for the members of the boys' department. Dick Cushing received first place, Herbert Doane second and Ransom Schaller third. There was much interest shown in the tourney and entry was now being received for a billiard tourney, which will start soon.

The afternoon program drew the largest number of people. It began before the first number of the program began the auditorium was packed. In the center of the room a ring had been set up and a boxing match was being staged. The first thing on the program was a boxing match between two heavyweights. Kurt Fuchs and Morgan Metcalfe, and they went into the ring blindfolded. The first round was a draw, but in the second round Fuchs was knocked out by a scream from beginning to end. At the end of the battle both of the fighters were smeared with black spots, but both emerged from it with few injuries. The boxing match was given in favor of Fuchs. Thomas Cronin refereed the match and Webster Kopp kept the time.

William Pond gave an exhibition of club juggling, which was enjoyed very much by the crowd. Manly J. rendered a number of vocal selections, and through the kindness of Carl Dehls music was played from a Victrola which was loaned to the association. After the program in the gymnasium the visitors went to the basketball games.

The first basketball game was a contest between the teams from the Methodist and Baptist churches. It was an exciting contest, ending at a tie, 8-8. The girls showed great skill in the game and they expect to play many games during the season.

The second contest was between the boys' teams of the same churches. In this contest the Methodist five won from the Baptist squad by a score of 27 to 6. Both of these games were very fast and they will bid strong for the church league title.

In the evening the public enjoyed the first of the bowling alleys and billiard tables. Later in the evening another basketball game was staged between the College Stars and a Y. M. C. A. five. This contest ended 15 to 7 in favor of the college boys.

SCHOOLS OPEN AFTER HOLIDAY VACATION

Children Return to Their Studies After Two Weeks' Vacation—Some Teachers Absent.

Public schools of the city opened up again this morning after a vacation of two weeks. The epidemic of influenza seems to have passed away as only a small number of children are absent. In the graded schools there are six teachers away from their work. In the high school one teacher is sick. At the high school this morning the number of pupils absent from their studies was between fifteen and twenty, while before Christmas there was seventy-two.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A Just Complaint.

The young chap in his "teens" with a mania for speed, coupled with a high powered car, is a dangerous enough combination, but to this add a lack of common horse sense and you have a total of zero in human make-up.

The brainless idiot who persists in opening his automobile out at one or two o'clock in the morning, racing up and down the streets, then stopping his machine in front of the home of a neighbor, is a dangerous person, racing his engine for a matter of five minutes, is fit for the padded cell. Those who are not sick must stand it and put it down to the vagaries of those who are.

The police department is lacking in the youngsters, the police department might help some to show the way.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

Question—How much lime should I use on my garden? What kind of lime should I use?

Answer—It is difficult to answer a question like this one, without knowing more about the soil in the garden in question. No soil is so good that it is not likely that lime would be injurious to the garden, but it may not be of any benefit, or of benefit enough to justify the labor and expense involved. However, if the soil give an acid reaction when tested with litmus paper, it will probably be benefited by the use of lime, though acid soil will grow certain crops well, such as corn, oats, barley and grasses. However, those who have made a study of these things tell us that practically all vegetables grow best in a limed soil and that leucismes resulting from lack of lime are usually benefited by applications of limestone to greater or less extent. Watermelons are injured by limeage. Circular No. 182 of the Illinois experimental station says that "liming is favored in its development by liming. This is because the disease flourishes best in an alkaline condition of the soil while an acid soil checks its development. In contrast to this, the club root of cabbage, a serious disease in some places, is checked by liming. In general, therefore, the application of limestone in vegetable growing is a profitable practice, unless, of course, the gardener wishes to specialize on such crops as carrots or watermelons. If about two tons per acre, or 25 pounds to the square rod, should be applied the first time, after that one ton every two or three years will usually suffice." The most satisfactory form to use is the natural ground rock. Unslacked or lump lime is undesirable, being injurious to the organic matter in the soil. If wood is burned the ashes may be used in the garden to excellent advantage, though because of their lime contents it is best to leave them off the part devoted to potatoes. They should be applied as produced instead of being stored where they will leach. Besides furnishing lime to correct acid soil, they also are rich in potash and other elements. About two bushels of ashes to the square rod will probably be about the right proportion.

COLORADO DRY LAWS PADEREWSKI SUPREME EFFECT THE NATION IN WORLD OF MUSIC

Legal Controversies rowing Out of Enforcement Effect National State and Municipal Government.

(By Associated Press.)

Denver, Colo., Jan. 3.—Problems affecting national, state and municipal revenues and legal controversies have grown out of the enactment of state-wide prohibition laws in Colorado, effective Jan. 1, 1916. Legal questions involve efforts to obtain a referendum vote on the statutory penalty law and the right of cities operating under special charter to regulate their liquor traffic.

Under the people's mandate given at the general elections Nov. 3, 1914, fourteen breweries and more than 1,600 saloons will be closed. A million dollars revenue of federal, state and municipal governments annually received in various forms of taxation.

Prior to the adoption of the constitutional amendment, a large portion of northern Colorado was "dry territory" under the local option law passed in 1907. Colorado Springs, third largest city, excluded saloons, the late General William L. Palmer, who took over much of the land upon which the city was built, having barred saloons in deeds to property.

The vote of Colorado electors Nov. 3, 1914, on the prohibition constitutional amendment was: For, 123,583; against, 115,017. Denver alone returned a wet majority, the figures favoring retention by approximately 100,000. George Carlson, an avowed adherent of the drys, was elected governor at this time.

The ensuing legislature enacted a measure designed to enforce the prohibition amendment and to provide penalties for private and medicinal use under certain restrictions. Purchasers for sacramental purposes are required to pay an annual license fee of $1.

Physicians are permitted to issue only numbered prescriptions, which must state the date and hour and specify the malady of the patient. The prescription must not call for more than four ounces of liquor, and not valid after 48 hours and cannot be refilled. Wholesale druggists must pay an annual license of $100 and retail druggists $5, to handle intoxicants.

Private companies, however, signing a receipt in the form of an affidavit showing the goods are for no other purpose than medicinal or private consumption, are exempted from the license. The company must be labeled to indicate its contents and a fee is charged to cover the cost of filing a record of deliveries with the secretary of state, required monthly of retailers and quarters of firms handling liquor.

Violators are subject to severe penalties. First offenses are made misdemeanors carrying fines of $100 to $500, or jail sentences of one month to six months, or both. Second or subsequent offenses within five years are made a felony, punishable by a penitentiary sentence of from one to five years, or fine of $1,000 to $5,000 for corporations. Officers refusing or neglecting to enforce the law are subject to being ousted from office.

Advertising or soliciting intoxicating liquor for sale is prohibited.

Any building used for illegally handling liquor is subject to being closed by the courts, or liquor retailers found on the property are to be held without property rights pending the decision of the court.

As to civil liability the law provides that any person who, by negligence or means of support has suffered at the hands of an intoxicated person shall have right of action against any person on whom that individual furnished the liquor.

At the Denver city election on May 19, 1915, the electors by a vote of 19,372 to 13,722 authorized the addition of an amendment to the charter empowering the city council to issue saloon licenses and assume general supervision of liquor traffic. The enactment of the amendment forms the basis of a friendly suit to determine the constitutionality of the law.

The constitutionality of the law is being tested by the city operating under special charter and at the request of Governor Carlson the supreme court accepted original jurisdiction in an action brought to prevent liquor retailers from issuing a saloon license to August Koch, extending beyond Jan. 1, 1916.

Counsel for the state argued that it possessed authority to enforce the constitutional and legislative prohibition enactments and that cities operating under special charter had no right to adopt legislation in contravention of that of the state.

Attorneys for the city held that the charter, granted by the legislature, gave the city authorities peculiar powers with reference to liquor perversion as well as other matters of municipal government.

Prior to the filing of the suit, opposition to prohibition had been the secretary of state petitioned to submit the prohibition penalty law to a referendum at the next general election. Secretary John E. Ramer refused to accept the petition on the ground that it contained a "safety clause"—a proviso stipulating that the measure is necessary to "the immediate preservation of the health, peace and safety of the community."

Under Colorado's initiative clause "may be attached to any bill, and was designed to prevent referendum on the prohibition law. The law in the district court in mandamus proceedings to compel acceptance of the petition and this was appealed to the supreme court.

Many Janesville Music Lovers to Hear Noted Artist at Beloit on Wednesday.

When an artist becomes by general consent a standard by which all other artists of the same kind are judged and graded, it means but one thing—that he is indisputably supreme. Such a position Paderewski has held for the twenty odd years in which his playing has enchanted the peoples of five continents. This is said in no wise derogatory to the many great pianists who are their share to foster the love of music throughout the world. It is but another illustration of the relentless law of selection and elimination, which, working, perhaps unconsciously, by the mind of the public, gives final place in history to the artist and his work.

When Paderewski first dazzled the world with the beauty of his playing, he opened a new era for the pianoforte, discovering unguessed possibilities in that instrument. Liszt reformed and enlarged the technique of the keyboard. Paderewski has done this for the pianoforte. He has revealed the wondrous command of color that lies in them. This is his greatest contribution to pianists of today and tomorrow. It was he who first made the pianoforte "sing" a melody so that the listener almost forgets that it is an instrument of percussion. And of this art he is still the master. He has made the union of his extraordinarily sensitive touch and his skill in the use of pedals has made him unique among pianists of our time.

With the years that have passed since he won his first triumphs, Paderewski, true artist that he is, has grown greatly, distinguished much. At first his art was distinguished mainly by its exquisite lyric beauty. Today it has the heroic grandeur of the epic. Where once it enticed, now it commands; yet that same lyric quality which made him famous is still at his call when need be. The sterner traits which time has developed merely emphasize and strengthen the lovely characteristics of his earlier work.

This development is merely typical of the man himself. In him are united the soul of the poet and the clear-thinking logical mind of the philosopher. A refinement of his charm of conversation which none can resist. An eagerness to know all that is new is tempered by the same conservatism of experience. An earnestness with the breadth of view of the true cosmopolitan. Quick to sympathize, charitable and generous in judgment of himself and of others.

Paderewski is now in the full development of his maturity. As he was in the beginning of his career, he is now a solitary figure in the world of music. His hold on the public, professional and lay alike, has never been firmer. Mentally, physically and temperamentally, he has been fitted for his life's work so as to make him stand out in high relief from the artists of his generation.

Popular fancy has a soft spot for the legends of his past, and a less profound materialistic age he would be a figure in myth. Even as it is, the mystery of his art so enshrines him that before he strikes a chord on the keyboard, before he has his listeners bound to him, as if by a spell.

His appearance in Beloit on Wednesday evening will attract many thousands of music lovers, and it is worthy of special note that his concert at the First Congregational church follows a musical evening in Milwaukee that is attracting statewide interest.

TELLS HOW TO MAKE A SMALL FARM PAY

"Love Your Work, Study Your Fields, Raise the Best," Precepts Followed by Walworth County Man.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 3.—"How to Make a Small Farm Pay" is the subject of a bulletin issued for the month of January by the Wisconsin Bankers' association, 30,000 copies of which are being distributed among the farmers of the state. F. F. Showers of Walworth county, a man who taught school for twenty-three years and then went farming, is the author of the bulletin. He has his own forty-acre farm and his advice in five short sentences as follows:

"Love and enjoy your work."

"Study your fields to know their weaknesses and their possibilities."

"Harvest your crop so that you will receive the largest return."

"Give your herd a chance."

"Love, care for and raise only the best."

Mr. Showers says that the farmer on a small farm must utilize all the corners of the farm and that the "return" from the investment in the farm will be equal to the wastes upon many large fields. He tells how he grew alfalfa on his farm during the past year and after paying taxes, the balance of his investment in the expense of putting up the hay, he figures that he had nearly $100 on each acre of alfalfa as profit.

"If you are thinking of joining the union so that you will have an eight or ten hour working day," declares Mr. Showers, "do not think of operating a small farm. To succeed in farming you must so organize your work that it becomes a pleasure instead of a task."

Speaking of his cows, Mr. Showers says that that a soft bed and a gentle, daily milking are the best ways of increasing the milk pails.

The basketball games Thursday evening resulted in the defeat of the college alumni by the regular college team by a score of 25 to 13. The high school alumni won from the regular team by a score of 17 to 12. If there were any stars visible in the four quintets, a cloudy sky obscured their twinkling. Poor basket shooting was noticeable in all the teams. The college team must improve very much, both in team work and basket throwing if they expect to make a good showing in the season's schedule. They are going to meet some mighty strong quintets this year.

Handicap of Ignorance.
Ignorance has no light, but error follows a false one. The consequence is that error, when she retraces her steps, has farther to go before she can arrive at truth than ignorance. —Colton.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—And Apparently There Is Not Going to Be Any Time Lost—

BY F. LEIPZIGER

PIDGIN ISLAND

By HAROLD MacGRATH

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

While she had effectively blocked telegraphic communications, there was no way of stopping the arrival of a letter in the morning.

A sudden silence, a cessation of vibration—she came back to actualities. The dreaded thing had happened. The engine had stopped. Now for the real battle between humanity and the elements.

Uncle Billy, quick to appreciate that this was no time to tinker, slung out his starboard oar and pulled with both hands. Fortunately the misty look took place after they had made the shoal.

It required quick work with the oar to get the boat back in line with the light. Still pulling with his left hand, he pawed back of him for the three pronged anchor. He shipped the oar, heaved the iron and made fast.

For a minute or two they dragged; then some friendly rock offered purchase, and the boat came about with her bow head on to the wind. They were safe for a time.

Lester crouched nearer and nearer. Uncle Billy was perhaps 300 yards from the dock. Lester could not swim as far as he deemed necessary to go. There was no possible chance of making a landing with the boats.

The surge as it struck the dock and the boathouse runway flung upward from ten to fifteen feet tons of water, sand and gravel. The current was very powerful besides.

"I guess I've gone 'n' done it, Miss Wynne," said Uncle Billy, rubbing his bleeding knuckles. "I'll never be able to look th' folks in th' face again. For thirty years I ain't never took no risks. I never see it blow worse 'n this. Know what we got 'n' do?"

"Yes. When we get near enough drop over and swim or wade in."

"See what they're doin'?" pointing to the huge combers racing past and flinging themselves like ravenous wolves against the island. "Miss Wynne, this is no time fer foolin'. Plain talk. We'll never get ashore 'bout some one o' us gittin' hurt. I'll never forgive myself fer lettin' a hundred dollars get me in th' hole. You're a strange young woman. I've made me do sumpin' no man on earth could do. Four lives depend on level heads, miss. I ain't afraid?"

"No, Uncle Billy. I'm only sorry for all this trouble."

"Well, if you ain't afraid we got a chance. A scared woman's worse 'n a hoss in a barn afore. When y' strike out head a few points 'n' th' west. That'll keep y' from bein' starved against th' dock. They break y' 's big on th' runway, on'y they can't slam

"Stand by for the cable!" shouted Lester.

y' so hard. Y' got 't light it out yourself. Nobuddy can help anybody else in there. Keep th' head clear 'n' plug. We three men 'n' gitt' 'n' somethin'. But I had no business comin'—hundred 'n' no hundred. I'm crazy. My o' bones told me a rampage was loosenin' up. It ain't on'y gittin' on that blasted island, miss, but it's stayin' there all night an' mebbe losin' both boats. An'

"You git hurt!"—
"Don't worry about me, Uncle Billy. I'm all right. I have seen worse storms than this. Every one for himself. There must be no worrying about me, no foolish sentiment because I'm a woman."

Billy watched the new hemp cable. It was lucky he had brought that. If the old mudhook held the Navarre would come out of it scot free.

"I hope your wife will not worry."

"I've told her never to worry till twenty-four hours after I'm missin'. They'll know where we are; they call us th' Pidgins. What's worryin' me is this here cable. It's got to hold all night, an' these mudhooks ain't 's easy ridin' 's skiffs. Mebbe when I wake up in th' mornin' th' ol' Navarre 'll be nosin' her Henderson's harbor 'f she don't bustle her brains out somewhere between here 'n' there. All right, I'm 't blame. I've let a hundred dollars fizzle me. An' I've dragged Mr. Cranford 'n' Lester 'n' it too. By jings, they're seen us!"

Coming out of the dwelling was the lightkeeper himself, arrayed in sou'wester, rubber coat and rubber boots. He carried a heavy coil of rope on his arm. He stopped at the side of the boathouse, calmly smoking his corn-cob.

There was no use of his wasting his breath, of shouting advice. All he could do was to wait and lend a hand when the time came. Fools, all of them that came out here to fish!

"Stand by for the cable!" shouted Lester, who was now within reach.

"Wait till I git th' anchor up!" More trouble. It required fully ten minutes' unceasing to loosen the mudhook.

"All right, Lester!"

It was Diana who spoke.

She stood up. Lester heaved the water soaked cable and fell short. Hand over hand it went back.

All the while the boats were drifting off. If Lester's engine refused to work it meant hunger and cold and maybe death, for they would be blown out into the lake.

"Tender?"

"Throw it!"

This time she caught it, knelt and whined about the forward seat.

She choked back a little sob as she heard the putt-putt of the loyal little engine in the other boat. Slowly they came back to the shoal and headed for the dock. Thirty feet offshore Lester held up his hand, and both anchors went over. A short drag followed.

Without a word—indeed, Uncle Billy said afterward that she smiled at him—Diana slipped over the side and struck out for the runway. One after another the men followed in after her.

Up and then forward with almost incredible swiftness, as if some invisible hand was flinging them, into a smother of foam and down, down till their feet touched the bowdiers, and up again and down again—plunging.

Then plunging water nothing else more quickly robs the human body of its vitality. The drugging weight of it, the inability to breathe, make for immediate exhaustion.

Lester was first to catch the light-keeper's line.

He knew that the latter would need help. He made the landing with but slight brisling. Together they pulled in Uncle Billy.

"Keep back, Diana!" warned Cranford. "Wait till I reach the foot of the runway!"

She smiled at him bravely.

She was growing weak. She caught the line just as a comber smothered down over her.

"Now!" she heard Cranford cry out. But when they began to pull her body seemed too heavy for her numb arms, and she let go.

Despaired, cut, exhausted. Occasionally some comber leaped so high that the revolving light touched it, and in that instant it seemed to stand still in the air vividly, after the manner of objects seen in lightning flashes.

The guide squatted on his haunches and peered out.

By and by his eyes began to absorb what light there was, and he saw two faint gray patches on the water, bowing and kotowing to each other like quadrille dancers. The boats were still there. Would the cables hold till morning?

All he had in worldly possessions, aside from his home, was that boat. It was his bread and butter. Without it (and at present no means of buying another) he might have to mortgage the home next year. He got up painfully and limped off toward the tower.

There wasn't any sense of Lester standing watch up there. Either the cables would hold or they wouldn't, and watching was only prolonging the agony.

All this because he had let the thought of making a hundred dollars dazzle his eyes and obscure his usual caution and common sense. He refused to admit that the girl and the mystery surrounding her had pulled him as strongly as the thought of gain.

He paused and reached down to rub his shin gently.

In helping Cranford in he had fallen on the slippery runway and bruised a shin against one of the rolling pins. Well, the poor young woman was paying for her hardihood—a cash two inches long on the side of her head and an arm strained so badly that her fingers spread out crookedly.

And she lay there on the floor of the boathouse without movement, without speech, too exhausted to moan against the pain of her injuries. Treasure?

He was in a fine mood for treasure.

He would have liked nothing better than to find it and cast it into the lake, to let it remain there till the second deluge (which the minister said last Sunday was off the way) and ever after.

Treasure? What treasure? How could there be any treasure on Pidgin? The adventure itself did not stir his imagination. They were all alive on shore, but he had broken faith with himself, and there lay the sting and the bite.

Known for years as the most careful guide on the river, and to smash that record into smithereens in a moment of mental aberration!

Perhaps the real backbone of his dissatisfaction over his conduct was the fact that he had now given the missus the chance for which she had been waiting for years.

She wasn't a scold, but she would not have upheld the traditions of her sex if she had refused to seize upon this weakness, to enlarge upon it, to fling it in his face from now on, all through the dreary, long winter to come.

Inside the boathouse Cranford sat with his back to the lightkeeper's boat, asleep.

A smoky lantern hung from the roof beam.

Between this and the other lantern, which stood on the floor a little way from Diana's head, swam a pale haze, tainted with the odor of kerosene.

From time to time a dark tongue of water would suddenly come in under the double doors, to seep lazily out again. The bolts rattled continuously.

Diana lay between the boat and the partition.

A blanket was spread over her. Under her bandaged head were two cushions, over and down which her loosened hair flowed, spun bronze in the light so close to it.

Her face, thrown into relief, had that rare mellow tone of a Velasquez portrait.

When she fell on the runway she struck against a bolt.

Fortunately the blow was glancing. Still, it laid open the side of her head as neatly as a knife would have done.

How serious this injury was Cranford was unable to determine, but the peculiar twist to the arm, as they picked her up and carried her into the boathouse senseless, alarmed him.

He had been on too many a football field not to have learned that often a strain is far more dangerous than a clean broken bone. Wild though he was with anxiety, he went to work coolly. Billy and Lester were worse than useless in this emergency.

Off went her heavy outing coat. He found it necessary to cut away the sleeve of her sweater, and he was glad she had worn that, for wool even if wet, absorbs and retains heat.

He drew the stool beside her and settled down to watch. An hour or so later she opened her eyes.

"What has happened?" she asked faintly.

"You fell and badly strained your arm. And there's a cut on the side of your head. Now, please, don't talk; keep perfectly quiet. I'm going to pull you out of this all right. The blow will go down by midnight, and early tomorrow we'll make for home. Try to sleep."

"A drink."

A strong cup of coffee was given her forthwith. She drank it greedily, but refused the buttered bread, and lay back, closing her eyes. She was so far gone in exhaustion that Cranford knew the coffee would have no other effect than to hold off hunger weakness.

Himself, he ate three slices of bread and drank three cups of coffee, for he was dead tired, and yet he must watch. Her head throbbed so that it neutralized the pain in her arm.

She kept her eyes shut, not so much to urge sleep as to avoid watching the roof revolve and the four sides of the boathouse expand and contract. And Cranford had so many pale, careworn faces! Truth was, a bit of delirium had possession of her.

How grotesque he looked with a halo above his head and another under his chin, the effect of the contralights of the lanterns! What was it she had forgotten? What was it she ought to be doing? Why had she fallen? What had really happened?

But even as she tried to pierce the fog, which seemed to oppress her, sleep "soft footed as the snow" fell upon her. She slept for four hours. When she awoke it was with clear recollection.

She saw Cranford, sleeping with his mouth open, most unbecomingly, his arms dangling at his sides. She knew now what she had to do. She must rise without disturbing him, steal out. Oh, the pain and misery of it! She felt back, groaning.

Brave and stoical she was, but there are some pains which wrench the cry out of us stifles it how we try.

Instantly Cranford was awake.

"What is it?"

"My ankle!"

"Which one?"

"The right!" She set her teeth in her lips.

Off went the shoe.

"No, no!"

But he gave no heed to her protest. He bound the stocking foot and saturated it with what arnica remained in the bottle.

He saw the tears running down her cheeks, but he did not know the real cause of them.

"Diana! Diana! What can I do? What can I do? Poor girl! Poor girl!" Tender and sensitive, he hated the sight of pain, and to see it twist the lips of the woman he loved was doubly maddening.

In the Right Place.

The pastor announced at the close of the sermon that a meeting of the board would follow. All the audience, except the board and one stranger, passed out. The pastor hemmed and said: "Brother, I guess you misunderstand. This is a meeting of the board."

"Yes," the stranger said, "go right ahead. I was never so bored in all my life."

Philip C. Hanna, former U. S. consul at Monterey, Mexico, touching in the course of speech on the advantages of keeping abreast of the times, illustrated his point by reference to a traveling salesman who found himself in a village hotel dining room when a heavy downpour of rain set in.

"Gee!" he said, addressing the waitress. "It looks like the flood."

"Like the flood?" the girl inquired.

"Like the flood. You have read of the flood, and how the ark landed on Mount Ararat, haven't you?"

"No, sir," admitted the waitress.

"I haven't," seen a newspaper for three days."

The teacher of a primary class in natural history had a visitor in the school room one day, says Mrs. Ray Ward Brown, the New York suffragist. The teacher suddenly closed her book, turned to a boy near the foot of the class and asked:

"Willie, can you tell me where the home of the swallow is?"

The youngster thought hard for a moment, but could not answer.

"Suppose you try it, Jimmy," suggested the teacher, turning to his neighbor.

"Can you tell me where the home of the swallow is?"

"Yes, mam," was the response. "In the stomach."

WILL PORTO RICANS BECOME CITIZENS?

Question to Come Up Before the Present Congress for Settlement.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Jan. 3.—Whether Porto Ricans are to be successful this year in getting the United States congress to admit them American citizenship is the question uppermost in the minds of Porto Ricans at present. Although citizenship has been promised since the days of the Spanish-American war and American occupation, seventeen years ago, each congress since that time has failed to pass the necessary laws. The islanders are now hope that the first democratic administration since 1888 will act favorably and give them a definite political status.

In the hope that favorable legislation may be obtained, Governor Arthur Yager will spend the month of January in Washington urging congress to act. Bills providing a new organic act to take the place of the temporary Foraker act, which went into force in 1901, establishing civil government and which has been in force ever since, have already been introduced in congress by Chairman Jones of the house committee on insular affairs, and by Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware.

"The new organic act should grant to the people of Porto Rico collective citizenship in the United States," said Governor Yager before sailing. "I know of no simple gift that we can go so far toward removing dissatisfaction and difficulty in Porto Rico as this simple grant of citizenship, and none that would be attended with so little cost and risk."

"People speak of citizenship as a 'privilege.' To my mind it is not a privilege at all, but a right. It is the necessary complement of sovereignty and should go with the flag. The people of Porto Rico must obey all the laws of the United States, pay taxes, are liable to military service, and yet they are not citizens."

"Citizenship does not at all imply suffrage or the power to vote for any officer of the government or anything else. In the United States there are now many citizens who have not the privilege of the suffrage than those who have. The people of the District of Columbia never have had the privilege to vote for anybody and yet they are citizens. Most of the grocers of the South, the minors of both sexes, and as yet an immense majority of the women of the country are not permitted to vote and yet no one would think of excluding these classes of the rights of citizenship."

The chief features of the bills to be considered by congress, it is expected here, will provide both for blanket citizenship and a greater degree of home rule. The most important home rule feature is the provision for an elective senate of nineteen members. The present lower house of the legislature is already elected by the present upper house or senate is composed of eleven members, all of whom are appointed by the president of the United States, and six of whom are heads of executive departments of the insular government.

Those most interested in the passage of a new organic act for Porto Rico have been much encouraged by the president's recent message to congress in which he recommended new legislation for both Porto Rico and the Philippines.

At the same time Porto Ricans point out that reference to legislation for them is so closely associated with that urged for the Philippines that they fear the two may become confused and that in the fight which they expect will develop over defining a policy for Philippine independence Porto Rico may again be disappointed.

Here in the island it is said that all difficulties which heretofore have developed over legislation by congress in behalf of Porto Rico have been cleared away. The most important single act which has been taken recently was the adoption of a new plan-form by the Unionist party, the majority party in the island, renouncing its independence platform and confining itself to a policy of home rule. Almost invariably in the past when legislation for the island has been under consideration at Washington and congress seemed about ready to grant American citizenship to the people of the island, long protests were forwarded to Washington setting forth objections to any legislation that did not provide for the for the ultimate independence of the island. It is admitted here that these protests have to a very large measure caused congress to delay any definite action.

Mr. Tolles had been ill for many months but had been able to be about the house until within a few days of his death. He retained his faculties until the very last. His was a kindly, genial nature, a man who commanded the respect and esteem of his neighbors.

When a young man he came to Wisconsin, returning in 1861 to Oil City, Pa., where he enlisted as a volunteer in Co. L, Fourth Pennsylvania Cavalry. For more than three years at hard service as a sergeant he returned to Wisconsin.

On May 24, 1869, he was united in marriage to Miss Anna Dayton, who passed away seventeen years ago. He is survived by one son, Willard F. Tolles, with whom he made his home; one daughter, Mrs. Maud Rice, of Detroit; one son, Arthur, daughter, Mrs. Ida Van Slyke, passed away July 12, 1911. He is also survived by five grandchildren. E. church of Shoppers, officiating. The song service was rendered by Mrs. Brown and Miss Moyle of Shoppers. The bearers were A. L. Roth, Menzo Van Slyke, Luit Swan, Charles Rice, Herman Kellogg, and Will Tolles. Interment was in the Turville cemetery.

Married Life on $80 a Month

"Julia told me about her broken engagement today," said John Sullivan, as he sat by the fireplace after Jack and the housekeeper had left. Molly dropped her work in her lap in the interest of her interest.

"It's all a horrible misunderstanding," said John, "as those things generally are." "Can't mother be an aristocrat?" she thinks her son is ruining himself by marrying a girl who is a common stenographer. "But she went to see her at hospital," interrupted Molly. "She had to go to combat his plan," said John. "You see, she was so sure that she would get over her prejudices. Of course, as she went there to find fault, she succeeded. But she can't see what she could find fault with," said Molly. "Blame him, it is easy to find. Julia is no beauty, and she has had only an ordinary business education. Her son is a college graduate and is rich. She had set her mark high in a matrimonial line."

"She might get beauty and a college education and miss all the qualities Julia possesses. Charles counts for more than anything else in choosing a wife, and she is old enough to know it. Molly's tone was thoughtful."

"Unfortunately age does not necessarily mean wisdom. At any rate she determined to break up the match. She went to see Julia, told her son that she was no lady," broke in Molly. "Did he tell her that?" broke in Molly. "No, she says there are some things

Household Hints

TO FRESHEN RIBBONS.

For pink, get a small glass jar of color paste (red) for coloring frostings on cake.

When pink hair ribbons become faded, wash with water and soap, solve a very small amount of the paste in enough water to cover ribbons, let stand half an hour or longer. Squeeze out and iron between cloths.

For blue, after washing the faded ribbons, let stand a while in bluing water. Squeeze and iron.

Yellow ribbons may be treated in the same way, use saffron for yellow. Sleep a tablespoon of saffron in a cup of water. Strain and put in the ribbon.

KEEP ROOMS VENTILATED.

From the fall closing to the spring opening of windows and doors the chances of health are 80 per cent. lower than during the free-and-easy life of summer.

It is of vital importance that an upper opening be kept in every living room, kitchen and sleeping apartment for the escape of the foul air, emanating from life, labor and decay.

Rooms that are not provided with an upper register or window ventilator can be perfectly ventilated by low, wide, shallow openings in the wall. This imperceptible opening is a regular life insurance.

If this precaution is headed all winter long, day and night, there will be a reduction in lung and throat diseases. In consumptive cases this law should be rigidly enforced.

THE TABLE.

Liver Dipping Soup—Boil a soup bone or a nice piece of boiling meat; add stock, onions, celery, bay leaves, carrots, just as you would for any soup. When well seasoned, chop up through a food chopper a pound of beef or calf liver, add one-half pound cracker crumbs, one onion, salt and pepper; work this together and make dumplings. Add a few strands of soup and dumplings and boil one more hour. This will serve four people.

Pressed Meat—One pound fresh lean pork, two pounds round steak; add three cups hot water and one teaspoonful salt. Cook four hours. Chop meat fine, add some of the stock, season to taste and press in a loaf dish.

Baked Sliced Ham—Get a center cut of ham about an inch thick. Cover it with brown sugar, sprinkle with paprika, place in pan of water, do not cover and bake one hour.

This gives a baked ham dinner for a small family.

Escalloped Corn—Butter a baking dish and in bottom or dish put a layer of cracker crumbs, then a layer of corn and butter; then a layer of cracker crumbs, and so on until the dish is nearly full, having the crumbs with a layer of butter and salt on top. Bake three-fourth hour in moderate oven until a light brown.

Barana Salad—Pare ripe bananas, cut crosswise, roll in peanut crumbs and brown sugar, maxonize dressing and butter; then a layer of cracker crumbs, and so on until the dish is nearly full, having the crumbs with a layer of butter and salt on top. Bake three-fourth hour in moderate oven until a light brown.

Mayonnaise Dressing—Put three eggs in a sauce pan, beat well. Add eight pint vinegar, saltspoon salt, dry mustard, a little onion, a few drops of lemon juice, and a little oil. Beat four in a sugar water, then add to the rest. Put on slow fire and let come to a boil, stirring all the while.

Crusts—One cup of sugar, four cups sugar, half cup butter, half cup lard, one teaspoon (sugar) of each nut, cinnamon, ginger, two teaspoons (sugar) of each nut, cinnamon, ginger, one pound seeded raisins, ten cents worth citron, one cup nut meats, half pound currants. Mix flour, sugar, butter and lard, add raisins, citron, nut meats and currants. Put in a measuring cup, slowly in a bowl, then in a pan, put an hour or two, then after, unless you are in a hurry, then mix in fruit and nut meats (all but citron). The fruit to be chopped.

SIDE TALKS

—By—

"I Can't Afford It," said the first woman who shook her head. "I don't want to do that." "She Couldn't Afford to be Unfair." Later when the woman who had given her the wordy-wise advice had gone and we were talking the matter over, she said, "It means a loss of two dollars and I can't afford it very well, but I can afford it better than I can afford to be unfair."

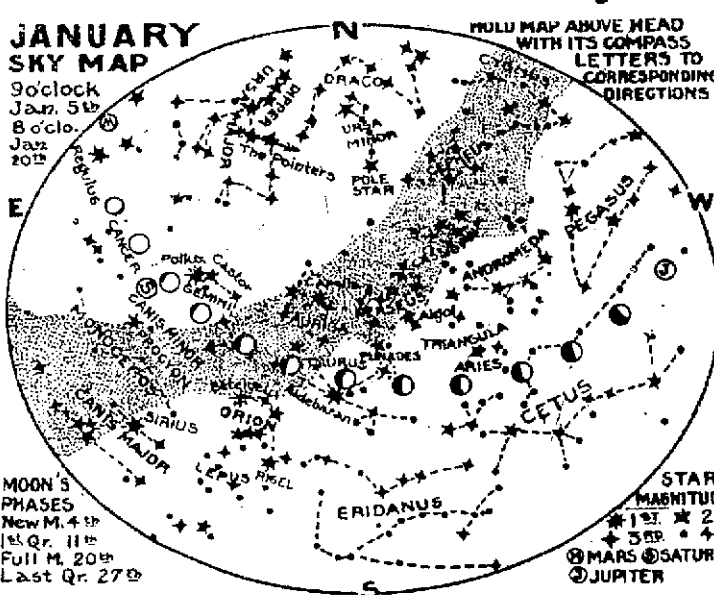

That's what I mean by not being able to afford things that are not bought with money.

Some things are worth more than they can possibly cost. Other things cost more than they can possibly be worth. Anything which involves loss of self-respect, lowering of standards, a compromising of what you know is right (remember, however, that it is very difficult sometimes to define right), belongs in this class.

"There is but one rule of conduct for a man, to do the right thing. The cost may be dear in money, in friends, in influence, in labor, in a prolonged and painful sacrifice; but the cost not to do right is far more to a man, to do the right thing, in character. You forfeit your soul's content, and for a timely gain you barter the infinities."

"Tell them they told you it matched and that it doesn't," said the first woman, and they'll take it back. "But they didn't say anything about its matching," said the first woman, "because I wasn't trying to match it to anything."

The Heavens in January

Position and Phase of Moon shown for 9 o'clock East. Stand. Time each night.

Three great planets visible this month, Saturn, Jupiter and Mars—Jupiter in the South with a brilliancy rivaling Jupiter's—the constellations.

Partial eclipse of the moon at 3 a. m. on January 20, visible throughout the United States—eclipse of the sun on February 2, visible in this country.

By C. S. Egan, of the Columbia University Observatory staff.

Observers of the heavens this month will have the good fortune of seeing the great planet, Saturn, brilliant and Mars will all be in position to be observed in the early hours of the night. The map shows that Jupiter is already in the West at nine o'clock, but already at midnight you will see him gleaming in the sky, and he will then also be a good bit higher up. Saturn will be in good position to be viewed by the end of the month, and Mars will be in the North at midnight.

Alcohol a Cause of Suicide.

Almost every year, and frequently at shorter intervals, the community is stirred by the suicide of one of its members. Probably there are few things that bring to the public conscience a sense of humiliation and discomfort such as does the occurrence of such an event. Temporary insanity, poor health, business reverses and family troubles may be and no doubt are the immediate and sometimes the primary cause of some suicides, but these conditions are often produced by alcohol, so that it may be said that alcohol is the primary and fundamental cause of very many suicides.

After the excited period or spree as it is commonly termed, passes off, the ordinary drinking man experiences a sense of depression and wretchedness in mind and body. To this feeling of wretchedness and the impoverishment of the body of the alcoholic, evidence is furnished by many cases of suicide. The verdict "While temporarily insane" often represents the fact that the brain, owing to the action of alcohol, has temporarily lost its capacity for energy and control so that a homeless and morbid outlook upon life and its possibilities alone remains.

A statistical proof of the connection between alcoholism and suicide is given by Professor Miller of Kiel in Germany, who reported autopsies on 300 suicides and found from examining the bodies that nearly one-half of the cases were alcoholics. In his report he stated this to be a minimum estimate, as in many instances the use of alcohol, although sufficient to render a man incapable of action, could not have produced sufficient changes in the internal organs for these to be observable in the post mortem examination.

A statistical evidence showing the close connection between alcoholism and suicide is found in the report of Dr. Sullivan, medical officer in his majesty's prison service, wherein it appears that 20 consecutive cases of suicide or attempted suicide the proportion due to alcoholism was found to be 78 per cent. The usual condition present in four-fifths of the cases he found was drunkenness, supervening on chronic intoxication.

SALOONS ARE CLOSED IN CAIRO, ILLINOIS, ON SUNDAY FOR GOOD

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Cairo, Ill., Jan. 3.—Saloons were closed in Cairo Sunday and will be every Sunday hereafter as a result of an agreement on the part of the mayor and city council that the Sunday closing law should be enforced and the saloon license reduced.

Mayor Wood says that the law will be enforced to the letter without favoritism, and that the Police Board has given orders that any saloon keeper who attempts to evade the law shall be arrested.

Agitation for the enforcement of the Sunday closing law has been going on for some time, the contention being made that Cairo has an undesired reputation as a wide-open town. An order to the saloons to close on Sunday was an auspicious New Year's present, it was claimed.

The city council was told, on behalf of the saloon keepers, that the Sunday trade amounted to 30 or 35 per cent of the total for the week, and that Sunday closing would work a hardship on the druggists unless the license fee were reduced. On this plea the license was cut from $1,600 to $800 a year. Attempts to obtain a reduction to $500 failed when the city officials said that such a reduction would seriously interfere with necessary city revenues.
